

A Service, Realtors Should Consider

I may sound like the guy from the hair formula commercial but seriously I am a user and a shareholder of a company whose service you should consider. My name is Alex Bolongaro and I have been a realtor in British Columbia for almost 20 years. Currently I am at Dexter Properties.

In 2006 I came to know a company called Datawitness Online Ltd. which does online contracting and archiving. I am now hooked on their service!

FRUSTRATED WITH ALL THE PAPER.

As a realtor I find all the paper associated with our profession - annoying and costly. Now for pennies I have eliminated the paper in my life and have peace-of-mind that my records are archived with Datawitness. Below are a few of the benefits I realized:

- cost saving of storage compared to bankers boxes in storage units
- permanent/semi permanent storage of files particularly contract of purchase and sale on a static technology that allows me to comply with the regulation of maintaining files for clients
- Retrieval of files on desk top from any computer with internet access so as to facilitate both client needs on-the-go and contract negotiations
- multiple retrieval from anyone on my team from any computer--no more duplication of files or sharing of files for information gathering and no more lost/ misplaced files
- Documentation of retrieval of files to keep tabs on employees on the team and of contact with clients.

Other top producers are already using this service and they are more efficient and better prepared to capture more clients do more business!
